Originally from Dublin, James completed his 5 year Masters Degree in Chiropractic at the Anglo-European College of Chiropractic in 2009.

James' expertise lies in assessing, managing and treating a wide variety of sports injuries while reducing the chances of their recurrence. As a certified A.R.T therapist (Active Release Techniques), James is able to deal with effective muscular problems from gym goers to elite athletes with a focus on improving human function and movement in order to optimise sports performance.

He uses manipulation of the spinal and peripheral joints and up to date treatment methods to help with all sports related injuries, spinal and joint problems, and muscular conditions such as back pain, neck pain, headaches, elbow and hip problems.

His passion for sports, has seen him work with elite tennis players, professional football & rugby players, international iron man & marathon athletes. As a keen long distance runner for the past 10 years, James regularly participates in 3-4 marathons a year.

James is also certified for the International Chiropractic Sports Learning (Fédération Internationale de Chiropratique du Sport (FICS)- the world recognised post-graduate qualification for sports chiropractors.
